

The American Club® was built in 1918 as a home for "single men of modest means" . . . immigrant men who came to work at Kohler Co. In 1924, a recreation center was added that would later become The Horse & Plow. Here the men spent their free time in the bar and game room of four pool tables and fifteen sturdy card tables. After a day of work at Kohler Co., and time spent studying English at evening school or in the reading rooms of The American Club, the men would come to the recreation center for camaraderie and good natured competition at the pool and card tables. Skat and Schafskopf, old German card games using a 32-card deck, were popular then. In the early 1940s, major remodeling took place, and a 4-lane bowling alley was installed in the west of the Taproom. Bowlers paid 15 cents a line and 35 cents for the most popular libation – a shot and a beer. At the end of each season, it was custom to hold a "bust-up" party in the Taproom. A long table would be heaped with potato salads, coleslaw, cold cuts, buttered slices of rye bread, hot mustard, crunchy dill pickles and the traditional "tiger meat" – ground sirloin with onions. The old oak bar, echoes of rumbling bowling balls and slapping of cards on the tables are gone now. But what happily remains and continues in The Horse & Plow is the atmosphere of good fellowship and the wonder spirit of gemütlichkeit.
